AN ALLIANCE VICTORY.

Jacuson, Miss., Oct. 22.—The Alliance element of the convention scored a notable victory today, and its ideas as to taxation have become engrafted in the constitution. The issue was presented by section three, of the report of the committee on corporations, which touched upon the power to tax corporations, and provides for an exemption of five years in favor of certain enterprises. A number of the ablest men in the convention advocated an exemption of ten years, as calculated to encourage the establishment of manufacturing and other enterprises necessary to the develop-AN ALLIANCE VICTORY. other enterprises necessary to the develop-ment of the state and essential to its pro-gress. The Alliance men, led by Frank Burkitt, and Mr. Bride of Tippah county, successfully opposed all exemptions.

BURGLARIZED.

BURGLARIZED.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 21.—Burglars entered the house of Merton Birmingham, at 1216 Oak street, at 10 o'clock tonight. When they entered Mr. Birmingham's room they awakened Mrs. Birmingham, who sprang out of bed and grappled with one of them. The burghar seized her by the threat and choked her into unconsciousness. His pal kept Mr. Birmingham in bed at the point of a revolver, while the other burglar ransacked the room, and secured $72 in money. Mr. Birmingham is a rich sand contractor, and generally carries a large amount of money with him. Today he paid out a considerable sum. This is the first night in a year, he says, that he has not had at least $500 in the house. Mrs. Birmingham is an aged woman, and her injuries are severe.

It is not necessary to inveigh against drastic purgatives. They who have used them tic purgatives. They who have used them continuously know the consequence. A remedy which unites the action of a regulating medicine for the bowels with that of a tonic both for those organs, the liver and the stomach, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, sanctioned by the best medical authority, and receiving daily the endorsement of our fellow countrymen. With this effective, though gentic, laxative at hand, it is possible to defy those changes of temperature productive of constipation, as well as constitutional attacks of billiousness, which beset even people naturally healthy. THE HENNESSEY MURDER.

THE HENNESSEY MURDER.

New Orleans, Oct. 22—Joseph Willfams, a colored youth, relates a story which is likely to prove an important link in the Hennessey case. He is well acquainted with Casparo Marchesi, the 14year-old son of one of the mon charged with complicity in murdering. Hennessey.
The boy was arrested with his father, but was released, as no one identified him, Williams met the boy afterwards and asked him how he got out of juil. Marchesi replied that he had turned state's evidence against his father; that the latter made him stand on fiired street, and watch for the chief; told him to whistle when Hennessey approached and then run to the Poydras market. The whistle was the signal for his father and the others to come out of the shanty on Girod street. He did as told the night of the murder, and his father and an Italian joined him at the market shortly afterwards, where they were arrested.

WHAT IS IT?

The Influence That Sometimes Guides Us Against Our Will.

"No, I do not believe in ghosts," said an id bely of great experience; "but I do beold lady of great experience; "but lieve in the ministration of spirits. This is not the age, nor the country, in which the supernatural flourishes. Inter-est centers about the practical. Haunted houses are rented without great difficulty. if the landlord is willing to knock off a

if the landlord is willing to knock off a portion of the rent.

There are many, however, who will admit the exertion, at times, of some peculiar influence, swaying our actions. We are led to do things we should not do of our own volition—the wisdom of which we do not appreciate until afterwards; then we wonder how we came to do them. We are forced to learn that worldly wisdom is not always that which guides into the wises? always that which guides into the wisest courses.

In this practical age results are what people are looking after. They believe in what they see; the "evidence of things not seen," is to be weighed in the future. When a man is sick be wants to get well; he cares fittle what medical method is employed if it cares. But if it does not cure he seen begins to doubt the skill of the physician, and inquire into his methods of medication. A happy thing it is sometimes, if some influence induces investigation before it is too late.

Learning from Graduates.

Those who are at all interested to schools have no doubt often noticed the peculiar pupils with their examination papers. In teacher attempted to give English composition a prominent place in his instruction, knowing well the almost perfect bewilderment with which many pupils attempt to express ideas on paper. His method was to read or tell some simple tale or incident, and then ask the students to tell it in their own language.
One young lasty, whose name I noticed among the graduates from this school, in attempting to rehabilitate the story of the "Leak in the Dyke," wrote, "Once there was a little boy who tried to stop up a hole in Holland." A youth of 10, is attempting to restore to words the highly moral story of George Washington and his intelest, seemed to have misconceived the true in-wardness of this classic, and wrote as follows: "George Washington once hired out to work for a woman, and she tried to get him to lie for her, but he said he wouldn't lie for no woman, and that's all I remem-ber of the story." Eight policemen, fifteen street car drivers and as many conductors, a double team at tached to a truck in charge of a driver and a big white horse hitched to a bobtati car completed the cast in a little horse play. Scene, rallway terminus at Grand street ferry. Audience, 250 persons of all kinds and very appreciative. In the course of the play the white horse attempted to pull the car around on the turn table, and while in the act of so doing the driver of the truck sheered his team so that the vehicle was brought up against the white horse, and the animal of the bobtail car made a startling dramatic climax by plunging his "off" foreleg between the spokes of one of the track wheels.

The white horse danced about on three hoofs, while the cight policemen and fif-teen car drivers cavorted wildly about the horse, but at a respectable distance from its heels. Some one suggested a jackscrew as a good thing to get the animal's leg out of the truck wheel. But there wasn't any jackstrew at hand. Another man wanted to saw off the wagon spoke. The animal displayed horse sense by applying a remedy in the shape of vigorous kicks and plunges. The leg was extricated from its perilous position, the bobtail car conductor rang down the curtain on the last act and the audience dispersed well pleased with the entertainment .- New York Telegram.

Thomas' Love for Mary.

Thomas and Mary, butler and maid in an uptown family, are lovers, and the marvelous courting of Dinah Shadd is as nothing to the wooing that goes on in out of the way nooks and behind the casual friendly screen. But it isn't so out of the way that the family may not occasionally, though standing outside, catch some glimuse, through eye or ear, of the paradise that is roofed in by their house.

"Mary," Thomas was heard to say a day or two ago, quite "unbeknownst," as he supposed, "Mary, I do be lovin' you like you was a part of meself." 'Like I was a part of you how, Thomas?"

whispered Mary.
"Ah, Mary," in a last wild reaching out for words that might fifly frame his affection, "like you was such a part of me that if you was eatin' fish, Mary, the bones uf it wad be stickin' in me own throat?"-New York Evening Sun.

Theatrical Etiquette Abroad. A curious contrast is that in the London theatres etiquette requires that all those in the dress circle and parquet, gentlemen and ladies, must appear in full dress. In Paris, the head of the social system in the world, it is just the reverse. Those actually in the dress circle must appear in full dress, but in the parquet never. I was possibly the only one in full dress among 1,000 people in the parquet at the Grand Opera, hearing "Faust." When I asked for an explanadue to the native politeness of the nation; as so many strangers are there who are not expected to have dress suits the Frenchmen do this in deference to them .-Atlanta Constitution.
